ART	1103	60126	3		Drawing I: Honors	Humanities	Murphy	TR 0900-1150	This course combines studio and seminar components to teach drawing skills as a vehicle for heightened understanding of the physical world. Students will learn foundational techniques of observational drawing and will explore drawing's historical role in both scientific and humanities disciplines. Learning how to draw observationally is about paying close attention to one's surroundings, and the process of drawing can be both meditative and analytical. Through hands-on art projects, lectures, readings, field trips and group discussions, students will develop their own artistic voice and learn to use drawing as a vehicle for contemplation and innovation. Students will be encouraged to make interdisciplinary connections, and explore complex conceptual questions throughout the drawing process. No previous drawing experience required. BIOL	2890	67112	1		Using Nutritional Ecology to Link Physiology, Behavior, and Ecology: Honors	STEM	Wilder	T 1200-1250	The goal of this course is to provide an overview of the topics studied in nutritional ecology and their relevance to different fields of biology The field of nutritional ecology was developed to aid in understanding the complex interactions between macronutrients in animal diets and their consequences for health and fitness. This work integrates several fields of biology including: physiology (What are the biochemical pathways through which nutrients affect animals?), behavior (How do animals choose among foods to regulate their diet?), and ecology (What are the consequences of diet for populations, communities and ecosystems?). BIOL	3890	64480	1		Physiology: Honors	STEM	Minghetti	M 1530-1620	Controversies in Physiology - We will use a seminar format to explore areas of controversy within physiology and physiology-related sciences. Selected topics will be in-depth explorations of material that is (usually) briefly touched upon in class, giving you the opportunity to advance your understanding of physiology beyond what we have time to consider in the main course. As the seminar title indicates, our topics will be those for which there is some controversy, e.g., because the science is emerging or very complex, because ethical questions arise as a result of the science, and/or because segments of society have difficulty accepting the science. Course meetings will be a combination of professor-led and student-led discussions over topics for which the materials have been given to everyone for review ahead of time in order to come to the class prepared. CDIS	2890	71602	1		Deaf Experience & Merger Mapping: Honors	Humanities	Freeman	W 1230-1320	Interested in the real-life experiences of deaf/hard-of-hearing people? This class project involves interviews of adults and teens with hearing loss and their families about social, linguistic, and work/school experiences. Practice skills in various stages of community-engaged research: design questions; conduct, annotate, process, and analyze interviews in speech or sign language with an interpreter; summarize and present the process and results; connect with and create resources for the community. Students also have the opportunity to contribute to a second project, a phonetic study of how certain vowel pronunciations vary across North American English. You must be an honors student enrolled in one of the listed courses this semester or the previous semester. Instructor permission is required to register, but only to be sure you have an idea what the class project is about before signing up. Take a minute to look at the Student Corners on the project websites https://dxdx.okstate.edu/ and https://freemanvalerie.weebly.com/projects/prevelar-mergers , then let Dr. Freeman know if you have questions or want permission to enroll: valerie.freeman@okstate.edu . ENGL	2890	71049	1		Mapping this Land: Honors	Humanities	Ross	M 1430-1520	This course will read the history of the land that comprises Oklahoma by looking at how it has been mapped, or how maps have created its identity. Utilizing the extensive collection of historical maps in the Edmon Low Library's collections, we will trace the mapping of the land in its political designations, from Louisiana Purchase to Indian Territory to Oklahoma Territory to State of Oklahoma, and numerous other stages in between. We will consider how maps can reveal the priorities of the societies that produce them, from geological features to natural resources, from weather statistics to military movements. And drawing from sources as diverse as early 20th century survey and allotment maps, the musical mappings of Woody Guthrie, oil and gas leases, and earthquake maps, we will examine how maps inform our way of thinking about and living in a place. As a culminating project, students will eventually produce some type of map of Oklahoma or part of Oklahoma, thinking creatively about what a map can represent, along with an essay explaining their cartographic methods and choices.	Course Type - In Person This is an Honors Add-on Course you MUST also take ENGL AP/IB ANY
ENGL	2890	71050	1		Mythology and Folklore in Graphic Novels: Honors	Humanities	Morse	R 0900-0950	Many have argued that superhero stories are our modern myths. But what about the plots, characters, and interactions these stories import from older mythological and folkloric traditions? This course will examine the disparate and often overlapping-uses of mythology and folklore from around the world in popular comics released by mainstream publishers such as Marvel and DC; critically acclaimed series by writers such as Neil Gaiman, Mike Mignola, and Natasha Alterici; and excerpts from graphic novels that take inspiration from Greek, Norse, Irish, Russian, African, Egyptian, Chinese, Japanese, and Pacific Island lore. Students will think and write critically about contemporary depictions of traditional characters, create their own storyline using elements adapted from myths and/or folktales, and submit papers that explain the choices involved in their own mythmaking process.	Course Type - In Person This is an Honors Add-on Course you MUST also take ENGL AP/IB ANY
ENGL	2890	71051	1		Stuff OSU Should Know: Podcasting OSU History and Culture: Honors	Humanities	Wood	W 1030-1120	In this course students will contribute to the design, production, and distribution of a podcast that offers a students' perspective on the past, present, and future of Oklahoma State University. In past iterations of this course research topics have ranged from historical inquiries into Oklahoma A&M / OSU during times of war and the economic foundations of the University in the Land Grant System to more topical matters like construction on campus, Greek Life at OSU, and Homecoming, but students will choose their own desired topics of research and podcasting based on in-class group brainstorming sessions. The semester will commence with a collaborative campaign to review and market the existing episodes of Stuff OSU Should Know and an individual project for which you must follow a podcast and write a review of it with an audience of your peers in mind. In the second half of the semester you will work alone or in a group to create new content for Stuff OSU Should Know. Podcast contributions can take the form of composing and reading podcast scripts, or audio editing, visual design, marketing, and other sorts of labor that don't involve listening to your own recorded voice. For instance, one student's workload involved making various visualizations of the podcast's contents, based on discussions we had in class about representation and accessibility. Whatever the reach of the podcast episodes themselves, the creation of them provides students with a novel opportunity to refine their abilities to perform scholarly research, to conduct interviews, to articulate scripted and improvised discourse, market materials online and in physical spaces through visual media, and to converse and collaborate productively with their peers. ENTO	4400	61142	1		Honors Insect and Society	STEM	Hoback	W 1400-1450	Insects and Society examines the role insects have played in human lives historically and in the present day. Insects contribute more than $50 billion dollars to the U.S. economy and they kill more than one million people worldwide every year. For the fall Honors option, we will read and discuss Locust by Jeff Lockwood. The Rocky Mountain migratory locust was the most abundant animal on the planet and caused great hardships until the early 1900s as the western United States was settled. Today, it is extinct. This book examines the impact of the locust on the American west and reasons for its unintended extinction. Students will investigate the roles of biodiversity, ecology, and human disturbance in shaping our world in the past, present, in order to consider the future. GEOG	2890	69609	1		Honors Experience in Geography: Physical Geography	STEM	Lavanchy	W 1530-1620	This course is an honors add-on to GEOG 1114. This weekly course will pair with the Introduction to Physical Geography course and will go into more detail about the physical geography its influence on US Society. Primarily, the course will discuss the physical geography of the US National Parks and encourage interest and engagement with the National Park Service. The course will focus on how physical geography has shaped the landscape of the US and defined its National Parks and federal lands. Physical geography news and events and how they are portrayed in the media will also be considered.	Course Type - This is an Honors Add-on Course you MUST also take GEOG 1114 ANY
GEOLOGY	2890	66649	1		Beyond Dinosaurs: Honors	STEM	Burkett	M 1130-1220	Beyond Dinosaurs is an add-on option for GEOL 1003: The Story of Dinosaurs. Beyond Dinosaurs will allow students to delve deeper into their dinosaur curiosities through student- driven research, creative, or constructive based project. Students are expected develop and complete an independent project complimentary to, but in more detail than, the materials being covered in GEOL 1003: The Story of Dinosaurs. The instructor has a list of ideas which may be of interest for the student to work on, but students are welcome to generate their own ideas for the projects. Projects should consist of a written or tangible physical model/material generated as a result of the student's research. An example of a written report includes the aggregation of scientific literature into one synthesized document consisting of 10-15pages. If a physical model or set of materials is generated it should be turned in with a short 5-8page description and explanation of the project. An example of such a project would be a scale model of a dinosaur or portion of a dinosaur in which the accompanying text sites the sources and reasonings behind model dimensions or artistic choices. Students will meet weekly with the instructor to discuss their idea, progress, and troubleshoot issues. The use of 3D printing can also be made available once students have completed training on the Geology 3D printers. GEOLOGY	2890	70720	1		Honors: Earth Resources	STEM	Riedinger	T 1500-1550	A large amount of the various resources used by human society have their origin in geologic events and processes. This course will aim to provide a more in-depth introduction to key resources alongside GEOL1114. The resources to be covered will include energy, minerals, rocks and those necessary for life. Specific resources that may be covered include groundwater, surface water, soil, building materials, metals - precious, base and technology specific, renewable energy and fossil fuels. Currently, the relative importance of different resources is changing, and understanding their origin is important to investigating these changes. Examples include the decline in coal production related to an increase in gas and renewable energy resources, as well the changing need for different metals to support the development of technologies like smart phones, touch screens, solar panels, electric cars and large capacity batteries. HONR	1000	71011	3		Bad Arguments: How to Recognize Them and Respond with Critical Thinking. (Honors)	Humanities	Frohock	TR 1330-1445	This course focuses on how to recognize and analyze bad arguments. We will study types of rhetorical fallacies, faulty reasoning, and bad faith persuasion, looking for real world examples in public discourse, advertising, and social media. By studying bad arguments, we will work to define a methodology for sound critical thinking, which is fundamental to all academic discourse. To put it another way, learning objectives for the course are understanding how to avoid being manipulated by, and how to be empowered to respond to, faulty arguments. HONR	1000	69091	3		Decoding the World: Honors	STEM	Richtsmeier	MW 1430-1545	One of the unique pleasures of the academic world is discovering connections between apparently disparate concepts. In this course, we will attempt to make new connections among the codes and concepts of spoken language, the alphabet, and mathematics. Content from these three areas will be taught by an expert faculty member from speech, literacy, and mathematics, respectively. Additionally, coursework will also emphasize connections across content areas. For example, students will learn to detect regularities in the seaming irregularities of spelling, and they will examine how to predict when teachers may suffer a voice disorder. The course ends with demonstrations and a discussion of how course concepts fit within the mathematical conception of a "function". The intended audience for this course includes curious undergraduate students interested in: •Connecting ideas and concepts that may not seem to go together •Solving problems and puzzles •Discovering patterns that that are often obscure Majors this course may appeal to are: •Education, Linguistics, Mathematics, Engineering, Communication Sciences and Disorders, Sociology, Psychology	Course Type - This Course can be used to meet the Honors Seminar Requirement
HONR	1000	67305	2		Eloquent Persuasion for the 21st Century: Honors	Social Sciences	Holmes	TR 1030-1120	This course is designed to teach students of the Post-Internet Age how to communicate through oral presentation and speeches, to counter what is becoming the lost art of verbal communication. From the most informal and commonplace situations, to the most formal platforms on the national and international scale, this will give them a familiarity with the world's most significant speeches which shaped modern civilization. Reading those words will also bring historical figures to life. Building on that foundation, they will then prepare, write, and practice speaking in class. This will give them the confidence that only experience and detailed critiques will provide. It will show the power of precise writing, as Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, for example, demonstrated in only 272 words. All students will eventually give a prepared speech at some time in their lives, making this an invaluable tool. HONR	1000	70903	1		Policy-making In Times of Crisis: Honors	Social Sciences	Loughridge	W 0830-0920	In order to build a theoretical framework for policy analysis, we will use readings on three periods of extraordinary challenge: The Great Depression, the Cuban Missile Crisis and 9/11. The Great Depression since it provides an opportunity to familiarize students with the Dust Bowl and link it to our Oklahoma history; the Cuban Missile Crisis because of a) the availability of an extraordinary book covering policy in that period by Graham Allison, and b) the accessibility of the events as presented in the movie, "Thirteen Days"; and 9/11. The instructor will be able to bring some inside perspective, having worked in the White House and for the Secretary of Defense in the near aftermath of the crisis. Having built a framework for understanding policy-making during the first half-dozen sessions, we will review of the ongoing COVID-19 policy response, using the Oklahoma experience as a case study. Given the instructor's access to individuals central to Oklahoma's response - his own experience in leading a portion of the policy enterprise - we anticipate having multiple guest speakers with first-hand knowledge of the State's pandemic response. HONR	1000	69471	3	DH	Social (In)Justice and Social Media: Honors (DH)	Social Sciences	Stewart	TR 1500-1615	In recent years, social media platforms such as Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and Tik-Tok have put conversations about social (in)justice at the forefront of public attention and conversation, driving tensely polarized dialogues about sociopolitical issues such as racial injustice and police brutality, climate change, reproductive justice and access to reproductive healthcare, gun reform, LGBTQ+ rights, and more. Many theorists and tech critics have argued that various aspects of social media engagement – including the algorithmic processes that drive it – exacerbate problems of social injustice (e.g., by worsening problems such as prejudice, bias, hate speech, social division, and social distrust). At the same time, others have highlighted the critical role that social media has played in social justice organizing and education efforts, which have been a boon for social justice movements (e.g., Black Lives Matter, #MeToo). Which of these narratives tells the correct story about social media's relationship to social (in)justice in the 21st century? By examining various forms of media (e.g., academic literature, popular media, social media content, videos, and podcasts) from various disciplinary perspectives (Tech Journalism, Psychology, Philosophy, Communications), this class will explore this debate about the utility of social media for the promotion of social justice, and illuminate the complex interactions between social media engagement, social identity, and social (in)justice along the way. Throughout the course, students will have opportunities to examine and reflect on their own social media engagement and how they see it as promoting (or hindering) social justice efforts and related values such as respect for diversity, social cohesion and social trust, and effective	Course Type - In Person This Course can be used to meet the Honors Seminar Requirement
HONR	1000	69470	3		The National Parks and American Nature Writing: Honors	Humanities	Slesinger	TR 1200-1315	The landscape of the American continent has shaped the cultural imaginations of all who have lived here: a trend that began with the original, Indigenous inhabitants of the land and extends into the diverse populations of America today. This class will survey the stories told by American people about their land with two main emphases: first, an eye towards the plurality that is emblematic of American discourse, and also the overarching reverence for the land that has spawned various conservation efforts including the creation of the National Park System. When Yellowstone National Park was designated in 1872, it became the world's first national park, and marked a watershed moment in the relationship of the people to the land. But, others have suggested that it's not just the beautiful places that deserve to be protected. We will approach a variety of perspectives on American wilderness, national parks, conservation, and accessibility through numerous media in this course to provide an overview of the way this conversation is entrenched in the American cultural psyche in all its diversity. Does Arnold Schwarzenegger deserve an Ode? What would The Lion King read like in verse? While the vast lineage of poetry consistently engages popular culture (and vice versa), this course will examine the craft of 21st century American poets who are noted for employing pop culture in their work. Specifically, we will look at poets whose work explores issues of gender, race, ethnicity, and class by engaging contemporary American pop culture as a poetic device. Assuming no previous experience with poetics or popular culture studies, this course welcomes students from all majors. Instead of approaching poetry with predefined theories, the goal of this course will be reverse engineering contemporary poetry, that examines and reconstructs popular culture, toward understanding the relevance of poetic craft in contemporary life. LL	1000	64759	1		Intro to Hispanic Culture: Honors	Humanities	Oneill	T 1330-1420	This add-on examines distinct representations of the Spanish civil war (1936-39) across academic disciplines and artistic genres. The echoes of Francisco Franco's rebellion and subsequent dictatorship still stir conflict and conversation in Spain today, and we will read and discuss essays, short stories, works of art, and films that explore the causes and consequences of the fratricidal prelude to WWII. We will first briefly examine the political, religious, and economic backdrop upon which the war played out; was the war simply the inevitable clash of the poet Antonio Machado's eternal "two Spains"? To answer this and other central questions, we will then analyze the ways in which authors and artists both in Spain and around the world - from Picasso and Orwell to Guillermo del Toro and Javier Cercas - have delivered the conflict to their audiences since 1939. What about polynomials of higher degree? Counting real roots of polynomials is a very old problem that goes back to results like Descartes' Rule of Signs, which is mentioned in many elementary courses. We shall explore more advanced techniques on counting and locating real roots.
